vogueindia Divine femininity, body politics and a quest for tranquility are all subjects that interpret @dior's legacy bag, the Lady Dior. @MariaGraziaChiuri's homage to the classic top-handle is a year-on-year tradition: the Dior Lady Art project. This year, 11 artists reinterpret the icon with their own designs that reflect their thoughts, sensibilities, and forward-thinking ideals.

At the link in our bio, #DorothyIannone, @minjung_kim_art, and @ghadaamer reveal how they approached the discourse of femininity with the classic bag.

nycjoanka The year ends with a sad news. My dearest Dorothy lannone passed away on Monday. Dorothy meant a lot for me. It's hard to believe that we won't see each other anymore, that we won't laugh and eat chocolate together. I'm so grateful for every meeting we had. It was an honour to work with Dorothy. Her house was the Wonderland. She was an extraordinary person and an amazing artist. She was so generous. She sang for me. She read stories for me. She shared details of her beautiful and adventurous life surrounded by her muses, friends and lovers. For a couple of years, we have been working together on the exhibition titled "Love Is Forever, Isn't It?". I saw Dorothy last month and she was glowing, sharing her loving aura ❤️ My heart is broken. You will be missed Dorothy! Dorothy lannone, I begin to feel free, 1977

"In another incident, lannone was to be featured in a group exhibition at Kunsthalle Bern in 1969. Before it opened, the director demanded that the genitals in lannone's paintings be covered; in protest, Dieter Roth removed his work from the show and curator Harald Szeemann resigned from his position."

Dorothy lannone (1933-2022) was an American visual artist. Her autobiographical texts, films, and paintings explicitly depict female sexuality and "ecstatic unity." She lived and worked in Berlin, Germany.

jrpditions "The journey to universal, wholehearted acceptance of Love and Eros has a long way to go, indeed may never arrive, but the desire is on the march, gradually eroding in one way or another the opposition to that which makes us vibrant, radiant, and complete," beautifully wrote Dorothy Iannone in July 2019 in the reprint of her legendary "Story of Bern."

Lady Dorothy left us overwhelmingly sad when she passed away ten days ago, but her manifold legacy is to be remembered and cherished for very long. Lady Dorothy was a lover, a storyteller, a fighter, a role model, a book maker, a gourmet, a cook, and a wonderful person. She was vibrant, radiant, and complete as no one else.

We have been so honored at JRPJEditions to welcome her trust for republishing two of her most celebrated artist's books, working closely with Air de Paris.

artbookhwa The queen is dead ❤️ Repost from @airdeparis
Dorothy Iannone, 1933-2022

It is with great sadness that we announce the death of Berlin-based American artist Dorothy Iannone (b. 9 August, 1933, Boston, Massachusetts, USA – d. 26 December, 2022, Berlin, Germany).

Love and freedom has been at heart of Dorothy Iannone's work for six decades, with full force until her unexpected death yesterday, following a brief illness. We will deeply miss her as an original artist, an intellectual and engaged human being, a most loving, fun and compassionate friend.

"She is a freedom fighter, and a forceful and dedicated artist. Her aim is no less than human liberation." Robert Filliou, 1975

weekly_special Mourning fearless feminist artist Dorothy Iannone (1933-2022)

Among many other works across mediums, Iannone wrote and illustrated "A Cookbook" in 1969, when she was living with Swiss artist Dieter Roth. It's full of her recipes and commentary on their life together, rendered in her technicolor palette.

In the foreword for the book's re-issue in 2019, she recalled, "While I painted, I played my favorite LP records. Cigarettes and vodka, music and song, accompanied my journey through the nights in my atelier. And now, reading the comments with which each page of the Cookbook is adorned, I realize that nothing less than love could have prompted the transforming of an accumulation of recipes into a work of art."

tgoodgood I was lucky enough to meet Dorothy Iannone several times, sit with her, photograph some of her works and be invited to shoot her portrait for a story by Francesca Gavin. It was an exceptionally special day.

Dorothy, in our few interactions together you made me feel seen, and inspired by the vulnerable beautiful works you made, I started to draw again, not for anyone but for myself and as honest I could be. I think of you so often and I'm happy we had crossed paths again some years ago so I could tell you that.

So many people loved you, loved your art. I am so happy you shared it with us.

Thank you to those that introduced her to me, thank you to Dorothy for smiling with me.

archivioconz Archivio Conz is deeply saddened by the recent passing of Dorothy Iannone (9 August 1933–26 December 2022). In the words of Hubertus v. Amelunxen, Director of Archivio Conz, Dorothy Iannone, la grande dame and la petite fille. Above all, a great artist who consistently walked side by side with her work, since the 1960s a lusty and often difficult path through the realms of artistic and social chauvinism. Enchantingly beautiful, as perceptive as she was sovereign, and above all animated by divine irony, she walked her walk through the world of art alone. No, she was not a Fluxus woman, but all Fluxus men coveted her. Just now the large exhibition at the Louisiana in Copenhagen went to Aalborg. Dorothy was happy about the interest, but she didn't go to see the exhibition, what should she do among the many people, she asked me. She will wink with a smile from her heights at the exhibition in the Museum van Hedendaagse Kunst Antwerpen in October 2023.

Dearest Dorothy, I miss our Tea & Cake, our conversations and flirtations, I miss you, Hugs Hubertus
