

10 Art Exhibitions in the U.S. Worth Traveling for This Spring

By Allison C. Meier 4.2.2018

Courtesy of the artist and Greene Naftali, New York

Allen Ruppberg, "The Singing Posters: Allen Ginsberg's Howl by Allen Ruppberg (Part 1 & 2)" (2003)

Allen Ruppberg: Intellectual Property 1968–2018

March 17–July 29, 2018; Walker Art Center, Minneapolis, Minnesota

From "Al's Café," which opened in 1969 Los Angeles (a homey diner that served such inedible meals as toast and leaves) to the large-scale "Singing Posters" installation in 2003 that transformed Allen Ginsberg's "Howl" into phonetic posters, Allen Ruppberg has spent decades warping the American vernacular. This major retrospective highlights half a century of his conceptual art, including installations, books, films, drawings, and posters. In each medium, Ruppberg has instilled his wry humor in what he calls the "vocabulary of the ordinary."